DIRIGIBLE DEDICATED

Old Ironsides Again in Spotlight at Ceremony

Washington, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The glories of the past and the hopes of the future are entwined today in the Navy's observance of its 156th birthday.

In a world-wide movement, the limitation of its strength through a holiday on construction is under consideration. A slice of $60,000,000 from its next budget is before the administration.

But, on the birthday of Theodore Roosevelt, an ardent exponent of its upbuilding, the Navy paused for its annual ceremony. Seafaring routine slipped from the decks of many ships and the service kept open house for the nation.

At Lakehurst, a modernity was symbolized in the dedication of a new queen of the air—the giant airship Akron.

From the rejuvenated decks of Old Ironsides, Secretary Adams will recall tonight the magnificent traditions of America's men of the sea. With Governor Ritchie, of Maryland, and Rear Admiral William S. Benson, retired, he will have dinner aboard the ship, which itself may become a part of the Navy's curtailment program.

In seeking, at the request of President Hoover to decrease its 1932 budget, Navy officials recommend the inactivity of Old Ironsides. The President has, however, indicated disagreement with the idea.

JAPANESE TROOPS GO INTO MONGOLIA

EXPLANATION SENT TO ALL
CAPITALS OF THE WORLD
BY MIKADO GOVERNMENT

Tokyo, Oct. 27.—(AP)—With her grip extended from Manchuria into Mongolia, Japan explained today to the capitals of the world why she considers as not binding the League of Nations formula for settlement of the Sino-Japanese dispute calling for evacuation of the Chinese territory by Japanese troops by Nov. 16.

"Japan feels the urgent need at the present moment is cooperation of the countries," said a statement cabled to various nations, "and her willingness remains unaltered and unabated to open negotiations with the Chinese government."

The statement reiterated Japan's contention that the "whole Manchurian affair was occasioned solely by a violent and provocative attack by the Chinese army on the south Manchurian railway zone," which is under Japanese treaty control.

"Certain small contingents of Japanese soldiers still remaining outside that zone are insistently demanded by the danger to which a large population of Japanese in that region are exposed," the statement continues. "The presence of such a limited number of troops is quite incapable of being represented as a means of dictating to China Japan's terms for the settlement of the present difficulties."

The statement emphasized that nothing is farther from the thoughts of Japan than to bring armed pressure to bear in the course of the proposed negotiations.

TREASURY REPORT

Washington, —(AP)—Treasury receipts for October 24 were $4,951,987.39; expenditures $13,167,342.51. Balance $310,827,669.21. Customs receipts for 24 days of October were $26,375,008.03.

Mademoiselle Josee Laval

For Five Hours, Ocean Liner Held Up While She Dances with Mayor Walker

Gets New York Night Life

New York, Oct. 27.—(AP)—A queen of the sea waited five and a half hours today while the daughter of the Premier of France danced with a Yankee mayor.

The Ile De France was to have sailed at five minutes past midnight with Premier Laval and his daughter, aboard. At that hour, however, the orchestra in the fashionable night club was playing "Cupid on the Birthday Cake" and Mademoiselle Josee Laval was dancing with Mayor James J. Walker. Monsieur Laval was watching with an expansive smile, and a group of socially important persons who were gathered to honor the natal day of Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney beamed their approval.

The boat waited.

Finally, at 1:15 a. m., when Mayor Walker's car rolled up with Josee, the Premier close behind, the captain decided to postpone sailing until 5:30 a. m.

The mayor went aboard to wish the Premier bon voyage.

Photographers posed the group. Mademoiselle Laval declared her last five hours in New York were the happiest.

The Premier said goodbye.

The Mayor said goodbye.

The five-day visit was ended.

The Premier departed feeling France and the United States—since his conversations with President Hoover—understand each other better and know what to expect. His last day was filled with receptions and sightseeing, and a dinner by the French Chamber of Commerce.

GREAT BRITAIN FACING CRISIS IN ELECTIONS

Nationalist Government Threatened as Result of Finance Policies

London, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Thirty million British voters, laborer, collier, cockney, and squire entered the election booths today and wrote their prescription for the land's financial ills.

As the tumult and shouting of an unprecedented campaign died, two leading newspapers, on each side of the issue, this morning rated the importance of the decision.

"They are called upon," said the Times, which supported Ramsay MacDonald's call for a "doctor's mandate" for the national government "to make a decision which in a single day will preserve or destroy the value of British currency and the solidity of British credit."

"They are called upon," said the Daily Herald, opposition organ, "to declare that the budget shall be balanced, but not by plundering the poor, and that the currency shall be safeguarded, but not by groveling to bankers."

The consensus of political observers was that the national government would win, with a majority of up to 200 in the House of Commons, which would be ample to satisfy Prime Minister MacDonald's "doctor's mandate" request.

The prime minister himself ended one of the most strenuous political battles of his career last night.

WINTER HITS WEST WITH SNOW STORMS

Helena, Mont., Oct. 27.—(AP)—A forecast of "fair and colder" weather today pressed the stamp of winter on Wyoming and Montana. Snow and wind storms swept the region yesterday.

Montana's mountains were covered with snow and roads leading through the southern and eastern entrances to Yellowstone Park were clogged by an 18 inch fall.

Three inches of snow covered Anaconda. It was swirled through the streets by a blustery wind. Bozeman was beset by near-freezing weather but had little snow.

Western and southwestern Wyoming were colder today and some snow was falling.

Eastern Wyoming today had not yet been visited by the snow, but witnessed temperatures close to freezing.

Cooler weather was in prospect for Colorado and New Mexico.

Snow was expected to fall today in Washington's mountains.

NAN BRITTEN'S SUIT FOR LIBEL STARTED

Toledo, O., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Selection of a jury to hear the $50,000 libel suit of Nan Britton, author of "The President's Daughter," against C. A. Klunk, Marion, Ohio hotel keeper, was begun in federal court here today.

Miss Britton charges she was libeled in a book named "The Answer to the President's Daughter," which Klunk advertised. The later book was written by Joseph DeBarthe of Marion who is now dead. The suit was filed December 11, 1928. Similar suits are pending against Charles J. Sever and Claybourne V. Hudson of Marion.

ARMY FOOTBALL HERO IS HONORED IN DEATH

Cadet Sheridan Dies as Result of Broken Neck;
Hurt in Yale Game

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Back to West Point today came Richard Brinsley Sheridan, Jr., to find a last resting place with some of America's most distinguished soldiers.

The 21-year-old Army football star and honor student died in New Haven hospital late yesterday of a broken neck suffered in the Yale game Saturday.

Funeral services will be held in the Catholic chapel tomorrow afternoon. Interment will follow in the West Point military cemetery where are buried General Winfield Scott, General George Custer, General Robert C. Anderson, who was in command of Fort Sumpter in '61, General George W. Goethals, builder of the Panama canal, and many another famous military figure of the past.

At the request of Sheridan's mother services both at the chapel and cemetery will be private. The corps of cadets and officers of the post will attend.

Major General William R. Smith, Commandant today announced the Army football team would play out its schedule for this year despite the death of Cadet Sheridan.

General Smith said this action was taken on the expressed desire of the football team, the corps of cadets and Cadet Sheridan's immediate family.

But there was a distinct feeling the team would "carry on" and play out a schedule that calls for games against Colorado college, Louisiana State, Pittsburgh, Ursinus, Notre Dame and Navy. It was pointed out that Army has contract obligations with these schools that hardly can be disregarded. In addition to the inconveniences done opponents, cancellation would involve about $100,000 in receipts of which $400,000, estimated receipts of the Navy game, would go to the relief of the unemployed. Final decision as to what course will be pursued rests in the hands of Major General William R. Smith, superintendent of the academy.

Twenty-two years ago the Army cancelled its schedule after the death in the Harvard game of 1909 of Cadet Ben Byrne.

Widespread reaction, expected after the death of a player on so prominent a team, especially in view of so much recent discussion and agitation about over-emphasis (Continued on Page Three.)

FLOGGING PREACHER RELUCTANTLY FINED

Mena, Ark., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Polk county's flogging preacher, the Rev. Sid Wise, pleaded guilty to assault and was fined $1 in Circuit court here, but Judge A. P. Steel paid the dollar for him.

Regret was expressed by the jurist that it was necessary to penalize him "for a good deed"—the flogging of Bud Rawls, who disregarded the minister's warning to stay sober and support his family.

An assault charge against Wise's companion, H. R. Larimore, was dismissed. It was explained Larimore merely looked on while Wise administered the whipping.

Capone Bodyguard Puts

BIG SHOT IS IN JAIL

Law Has Upper Hand but
Attorneys Still Fight

Chicago, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Philip D'Andrea, pistol-carrying bodyguard for Al Capone, interrupted his contempt hearing today before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson and threw himself upon the mercy of the court.

Judge Wilkerson adjourned the hearing, saying he would give his decision at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Al has settled down for what may be a long stay in the county jail and apparently much more content to remain there than to leave for a federal penitentiary.

A ruling on the scarfed gang chief's request to be free on bond while his income tax conviction is appealed to the higher courts is due late today from the Court of Appeals. The court may either order him freed, sent to Leavenworth or held in his present quarters.

United States marshals were to take Capone to Leavenworth but they have been ready twice before, only to have their plans frustrated by court orders to hold him in Chicago.

The court called the gang czar's bodyguard to the stand after defense attorney Michael Ahern said D'Andrea would ask the court's mercy for carrying a pistol in his pocket during Capone's income tax trial.

Judge Wilkerson, questioning D'Andrea asked:

"What are your connections with Capone?"

"I'm just a friend."

"What is Capone's business?"

"I don't know. It's too delicate a question for me to ask."

The questioning brought out that D'Andrea went to Lincoln, Neb., recently to aid August Winkler, East St. Louis, Ill., gambler, in preparing his defense on charges of participating in the $2,500,000 robbery of the Lincoln National Bank and Trust Company.

CAPTURED FUGITIVE FREED BY GOVERNOR

PROVES HIMSELF GOOD CITIZEN DURING 15 YEAR LIBERTY CARING FOR RELATIVES

Columbus, O., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Charles McCarl alias Cundiff, of Mason City, W. Va., who was returned to Ohio penitentiary four days ago after freedom of 15 years, was freed by Governor White today on a commutation of sentence.

McCarl escaped from the honor camp at London prison farm in August, 1916, while serving one to 25 years on a charge of cutting and stabbing to kill. He was sentenced from Gallia county as a result of the wounding of a man in what officials say was a brawl.

Officials and friends at Mason City petitioned the governor to extend clemency to McCarl, pointing out that for many years he had been the sole support for a blind aunt and a partially blinded uncle with whom he made his home.

McCarl told officials he spent seven years working in New York and then went to Pittsburgh where he became a stoker on a river boat plying between Pittsburgh and New Orleans. During the off-season he said he earned a living by doing odd jobs at Mason City.

Governor White said he felt McCarl had made himself a useful citizen and granted the commutation on condition McCarl agree to continue the care of his aged relatives.

POWER COMMISSION CHAIRMANSHIP NOW LAID BEFORE COURT

White House and Senate
Tug at Technicalities
Over Appointment

Washington, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Before a small audience in District of Columbia supreme court, a legal tug of war between the White House and the senate went forward today with the chairmanship of the power commission as a marker.

Representing the senate in its contention that it had the right to reconsider the nomination of George Otis Smith after he had been confirmed and sworn in, John W. Davis, the Democratic nominee for president in 1924, demanded that Smith be ousted.

George Wharton Pepper, former Senator from Pennsylvania, defended Smith's right to the post.

In a calm even tone, Davis outlined his argument. He said the facts were admitted by both sides and that the decision involved merely a question of law.

Davis said the senate rules empowered it to reconsider a nomination before two executive sessions had expired, even though the president had been formally notified of confirmation.

"The signing and delivery of a commission and the taking of an oath, by the respondent," he said, "cannot fortify the position of the respondent or shield him from ouster by this court."

At the outset of the argument, a brief was filed by Erwin N. Griswold, a Justice Department attorney, in behalf of himself, Attorney General Mitchell and Solicitor General Thatcher. In it the crucial fact in the case "is that the senate intended that notification of its consent should be forthwith sent to the president before the time for reconsideration expired."

"Once that fact is established (and it cannot be disputed) the consequences flowing from it are inevitable."

"The senate did consent to the appointment. It intended to and did advise the president that it had consented. It consented to an immediate appointment and it intended that, if that consent were acted upon and an appointment (Continued on page three)

DAUGHERTY CASE TAKEN TO SUPREME COURT OF STATE

Prosecutor Takes Load of Evidence with Him to Support Motion

Prosecutor Norman L. McLean and assistant prosecutor Louis J. Schneider, went to Columbus, Tuesday afternoon, where they filed in the Ohio Supreme Court a motion for leave to file a petition in error in the original case of Ohio vs. M. S. Daugherty.

The two attorneys took with them the great mass of documentary evidence, transcript and all papers pertaining to the case, for filing in the higher court.

The next step in the case after the filing of the motion in the Ohio Supreme Court, is fixing a date when the motion will be argued.

After the motion is argued, should the court admit the petition in error, the court will then fix a time for hearing the petition in error. Should the Supreme Court refuse to admit the petition in error, the Daugherty case would be ended unless a new trial is held in the Common Pleas Court.

The judges of the Ninth District Court of Appeals came to this city September 14 and heard the Daugherty case, which had been carried up on error, by the defendant after he had been found guilty in the Fayette County Common Pleas court, sentenced to ten years in the Ohio Penitentiary, and to pay a fine of $5,000 and costs, and costs of prosecution.

The Appeals Court entered judgment October 9th, reversing the decision of the lower court and remanding it back for new trial upon one of the five counts, dismissing the fifth count against Daugherty.

The Ohio Supreme Court is composed of the following judges: Chief Justice, Carrington T. Marshall, Thomas A. Jones, Edward S. Matthias, Robert H. Day, Florence E. Allen, Reynolds R. Kinkade and James E. Robinson. Seba H. Miller is the clerk, Louis McCallister marshal and law librarian, and J. L. Henney the court reporter.

All hearings of the Supreme Court are public.

Columbus, O., Oct. 27.—(AP)—John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, has been invited by Governor Gen. White to participate in his conference with Ohio miners next Thursday, in connection with the Chief Executive's effort to stabilize the bituminous coal industry of the state.

The conference with the miners is to precede a similar conference with operators on Friday. In addition to Lewis, the Governor also has asked Percy Tellow, former state director of Industrial Relations, and now a special representative of the International Miners' organization, to participate in the conference with the miners. Seven representatives of the Ohio miners are yet to be selected.

The Governor also announced today the list of coal companies which he has asked to send representatives to the operators' conference, Friday. They are the United States Coal Company, Rail and River Coal Company, Hanna Coal Company, Youghiogheny & Ohio Coal Company, Powhatan Mining Company, Lorain Coal and Dock Company, Ohio and Pennsylvania Coal Company, Warner Colliers Company, Cambridge Colliers Company, National Coal Company, Sauters coal Company and The Clarkson Coal Mining Company, all of Cleveland; The Akron Coal Co., Forsythe Mining Company and The Black Top Mining Company, all of Cambridge.

BANK IN BALTIMORE IS ROBBED BY GANG

CASHIER AND GIRL CLERK HELD IN VAULT UNTIL AFTER CASH SEIZED

Baltimore, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Two armed men, one a negro, today held up the cashier and a clerk of the White Hall Bank, and escaped with $5,000. Whitehall is a suburb of Baltimore.

J. Harold Ensor, the cashier, said the men entered the bank while he and Miss Ida Slade, the clerk, were alone, the white man asked for some change and when he bent to get it, covered him with a sawed off shot gun.

The negro joined the white man, Ensor said, and ordered both himself and Miss Slade into the vault. They entered and were followed by the white man, who scooped up all the gold and currency on hand. Ensor said all the bandits left were several bags of coins.

The bandits sought to lock them in the vault, Ensor said, but did not know the mechanism. Ordering them to remain quiet, the hold-up men backed an adding machine against the vault door and left the building.

Ensor pushed open the vault door and called police. He said the small machine in which the men made their escape was headed toward the Pennsylvania state line on the New York road.

AMERICAN LEGION POST HERE FULFILLS WELFARE PROGRAM

Additional Activities in Boys' Work Noted in Written Report

With the American Legion already a month along on its seventh year of Child Welfare Work, the local post has issued a bulletin on the accomplishments of the organization, both local and national.

The Paul H. Hughey Post has met every phase of the national organization's program and then some, the report discloses. Additional activity among boys is especially noted.

The report, drawn up by Chester P. Dunn, follows in full:

"Local aid was obtained for 1,147 thru established agencies, ten children were placed in foster homes free, 15 were legally adopted after careful investigation. 1,726 children were found not to be in need of assistance and 26 more were having their applications for aid investigated at the close of the fiscal year on June 30, 1931.

"As this is the report of the national organization of the legion, it is not possible to figure the number of children that were aided by local posts. More than thirty were assisted by Paul H. Hughey Post in the past year and applications are constantly being received.

"Washington C. H. and Fayette county legionnaires have more than held up their end of the national program by being represented by two Boy Scout Troops, one to each post in the county, and by a Junior League Ball team that made a remarkable showing the first year of its existence.

"October marks the end of the American Legion's sixth year of child welfare work. A real need for this work started in 1925 so for as veterans of the World War were concerned and this phase of Legion activities has grown until 1931 finds that child welfare for both children of veterans and children of non-veterans parentage has far overshadowed the more selfish interests of the American Legion program.

"The child welfare program calls for a troop of Boy Scouts to be sponsored by each Legion post and for each county in the United States to be represented by a Legion baseball team. This is in addition to the more selfish endeavor to look after the children of veterans.

"Since 1925, 7,756 children have received financial aid and service thru the American Legion, 4,675 received this financial aid in their own homes with their mothers and in some cases their fathers, were given aid with their other relatives, 179 received aid in foster homes, 233 received this financial assistance while under the care of local welfare organizations, 11 were aided financially in hospitals."

CIRCLEVILLE PLANS TO CLEAR SIDEWALKS

Circleville, Oct. 27.—(Sp.)—This city has decided to clear its sidewalks of merchandise displays and advertising material, similar to the action taken in Washington C. H. a few years ago which resulted in a much improved appearance of the city's sidewalks.

An ordinance has been submitted to the Circleville council making it unlawful to have on any sidewalk in the city any sign or symbol for advertising purposes or for any commercial enterprise, art, profession or industry. The ordinance also makes it unlawful to have any fish box, oyster crate, fruit boxes, baskets of fruit or any other receptacle for display of any merchandise, candy machines, confectionery booth or show case.

It seems not to have occurred to telephone companies to have their poles equipped with bumpers.

RELAYING STEPS OF COURT HOUSE

CRUMBLING SUPPORTING WALLS MUST BE REPAIRED

Contractors Jim and Ed Williams have a force of men at work relaying the stone steps to the doors of the court house, and all of the steps at the north approach have been removed in starting the work.

It was found upon examining the steps that the brick walls which support the steps, had crumbled so badly that the steps were on the verge of collapse, and how they had retained their position on the crumbling walls was almost inexplicable.

Contrary to popular belief, the base upon which the steps rest is not solid, but consists of a series of brick walls supporting the steps near the ends, so that they have been none too safe when packed with people like they frequently are during sales or gatherings of various kinds.

The commissioners were to decide Tuesday whether the other two flights of steps would be removed and the supporting walls repaired.

MRS. RALPH SAUM CALLED BY DEATH

FUNERAL SERVICES TO BE HELD AT HOME IN COLUMBUS; BURIAL HERE

A community in which she was well known is bowed in grief with the announcement of the death of Mrs. Marguerite Conner Saum, which occurred Tuesday morning at 2:00 o'clock in Grant Hospital, Columbus. Mrs. Saum was taken to the hospital last week and underwent an operation which disclosed cirrhosis of the liver and all hope for her recovery was abandoned.

The Conner family has a large collection in this vicinity and the announcement of Mrs. Saum's death comes as a shock. Besides her husband, Ralph Saum, she leaves four children, Richard, William, Mary Jane and Betty, her mother, Mrs. George Conner, Columbus, a sister, Mrs. Helen Crenshaw of New York, and a brother Dudley of Columbus.

Funeral services will be held Thursday morning at 10:00 o'clock at the home at 228 North Terrace street, Hilltop, Columbus, and burial will be made in the family lot in the Washington cemetery. The funeral party is expected to arrive here shortly after noon Thursday and the casket will be opened to relatives and friends in the chapel before burial.

"It's good business for me to prefer LUCKIES"

"It's good business to guard my throat, so it's good business for me to prefer Luckies. I'm certainly for the throat protection which 'Toasting' gives me. And I'm certainly for your new improved Cellophane wrapper that really opens without a search warrant!"

Jack Holt

Here's to Jack Holt—the star who never lets us down! Whether in out-of-door pictures or dinner-jacket dramas, Jack always delivers an able and vigorous job of high-powered acting. A mighty, mighty trouper to have around. "A Dangerous Affair" a Columbia, is his next film.

That LUCKY tab! Moisture-Proof Cellophane. Sealed tight—Ever right. The Unique Humidor Package. Zip—And it's open! See the new notched tab on the top of the package. Hold down one half with your thumb. Tear off the other half. Simple. Quick. Zip! That's all. Unique! Wrapped in dust-proof, moisture-proof, germ-proof Cellophane. Clean, protected, neat, FRESH!—what could be more modern than LUCKIES' improved Humidor package—so easy to open! Ladies—the LUCKY TAB is—your finger nail protection.

★ Is Mr. Holt's Statement Paid For?

You may be interested in knowing that not one cent was paid to Mr. Holt to make the above statement. Mr. Holt has been a smoker of LUCKY STRIKE cigarettes for 5 years. We hope the publicity here-with given will be as beneficial to him and to Columbia, his producers, as his endorsement of LUCKIES is to you and to us.

Made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of many Crops—LUCKY STRIKE alone offers the throat protection of the exclusive "TOASTING" Process which includes the use of modern Ultra Violet Rays—the process that expels certain harsh, biting irritants naturally present in every tobacco leaf. These expelled irritants are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. "They're out—so they can't be in!" No wonder LUCKIES are always kind to your throat.

Laval's Visit

Many people—most people, perhaps, of the United States and England and France and Germany, the nations most involved in the economic depression and financial stringency—are asking why the French premier, Laval, visits us at this time.

The fact that the masses of people don't know, for certain, all the facts (and we are numbered with the masses of the people) doesn't prevent us from having some pronounced opinions on the matter.

For our part we believe that Premier Laval's visit is at the instance of the international bankers, here and abroad, and that it is one of the last moves, leading to the loosening up of the depression.

The international financiers have made heavy investments, outside their own countries during the last decade. American banker members of that group are perhaps the heaviest investors. Billions of our dollars have gone into foreign lands, both as loans to governments and to private interests.

War debts and reparations claims jeopardize those private loans and the international bankers want war debts and reparations claims cancelled. To do that would enhance the value of the security back of their loans and increase the ability of the debtor nations and the individual debtors, residing in debtor nation, to pay.

Billions of dollars of money—not securities, but money—have been frozen in the vaults of the international bankers. Depression has come as a result—a depression that has lasted more than two years—and the masses of the people are ready to consent to cancellation of war debts and reparations if that will end the depression.

In our opinion, Laval's visit is the big move to bring about an agreement for that cancellation and when that cancellation comes, depression will vanish.

Manchuria

Many wonder just what is behind the crisis in Manchuria. There is the familiar conflict of a prevailing culture of one people and the invested capital of another; the pressure of overproduction and overpopulation in Japan; the unextinguished hope of Russia for a terminal in warm Eastern waters; the various temperaments of the nationalities involved and of the individuals to which they look for leadership.

All of these are causes of war in good standing in a civilization in which wars are prepared for and peace merely talked about. But for all its resemblance to spontaneous combustion a war doesn't just happen. Someone at last must give the word that precipitates actual hostilities, and there probably never has been a time when that word could not have been withheld and the person upon whom rested the responsibility and the will and strength to resist the war pressure.

In the Manchurian controversy it is apparent that both sides are hungry for war. The will and courage to fight for peace is lacking in the leaders of both belligerents. There are too many sticks being carried around on shoulders for an amicable settlement without interference from the outside.

Thrills in Flying

Travel by air is not a particularly exciting adventure. There being nothing with which to compare the pace of the plane there is no sensation of high speed. And from a high altitude the earth below is worthy of study, but not so much more so than a colorful map with a few points designated.

Although the novice would have found spanning countries at a speed of 200 miles an hour an adventure packed with thrills, it is not difficult to understand why the feat should seem more interesting to Major Doolittle from the earth than from the air. In the cockpit it was only a long, tiresome trip, but in the retrospective it assumes a new importance as another long step in the progress of transportation and communication between nations.

Flights are interesting; flying uninteresting to aviators of the Doolittle type. With them the important thing is not the mere covering of air miles but the demonstrating of the possibility of breakfasting in Canada and dining in Mexico the same day.

INTERPRETERS IN ON SECRETS OF CONFERENCE

Difference in Languages Hampers, Somewhat, the Hoover-Laval Discussions

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Washington, Oct. 27.—If for no other reason than that neither can express himself so as to make the other understand, it is safe to say that the conference between President Hoover and Premier Laval of France never will prove to have resulted in any such strictly entente cordiale as is said to have existed between Mr. Hoover and Premier Ramsay MacDonald of England ever since their famous chat on the Rapidan two years ago.

The president and Prime Minister MacDonald have not, it is true, been able to shape all American and British policies in harmony, but the general belief in Washington is that at least they have tried.

No intermediaries were necessary to enable them to plan co-operatively, however.

A conversation between Mr. Hoover and M. Laval was a problem of interpretation word by word. Rendering English into French and vice versa is simple enough where matters of small importance are under discussion, but with issues of national safety and welfare at stake the merest shades of meaning may be vital. Simply consulting a dictionary is not enough. Linguistic experts are needed—several of them, for even they frequently disagree.

Translating international state papers is a notoriously ticklish job, and one that is done at leisure. A rapid fire oral exchange of views is materially worse.

Necessarily, then, there unavoidably must be a considerable number of persons who will know henceforward fully as much concerning the details of the Hoover-Laval conference as its two principals know, and while of course it all will remain deeply confidential, nevertheless in numbers there usually sooner or later are leaks.

It is seldom that a European statesman visits America who cannot, after a fashion, speak the idiom of the country, since education in languages is a part of old world education for public life; but M. Laval is an exception, in being a political accident, and therefore untrained in his profession's technicalities.

Mr. Hoover's French, on the other hand, ends practically at the early voo stage.

He was described, indeed, in early dispatches, as fluent in the tongue of the visiting premier, but the claim appears to have been made for him by one of his secretaries who took it for granted because of his chief's long residence abroad. Assuredly he never made it for himself.

Poetry For Today

LAMPLIGHT

I am sitting in the lamplight
And my thoughts are outward straying
To a little, grassy mound beneath the stars;
Full often-times I wishin'
That it was myself a-laying
Out there beneath the night's translucent bars.

Thrice has the cycle of the years
Come to its fullest measure,
Since she I loved was taken from my side;
And only in the thoughts and dreams
Of memory can I treasure
The joyance which her absence has denied.

Tonight the moon is calm and bright
Above where she is lying,
And it is solacing to know that beauty bends above;
But O, it grieves me bitterly
When rain and snow are flying,
To hear the wailing of the storm
Above the one I love.

Yet, there's a conscious, perfect peace
Comes in the lamplight's glowing,
And brushes every hidden pang
and voiceless grief away;
It matters not how dark the night
Or fierce the tempest's blowing,
I know the confines of her tomb
are lit by Heaven's ray.

—FRANK GRUBBS
tolerably proficient French scholar for ordinary social purposes, but by no means equal to diplomatic negotiations without assistance in any language but his own.
M. Laval's daughter Jose—or Jo-sette, her father's pet name for her —proved on her arrival here to speak unexpectedly good English, but with nothing like the rapidity or profundity of knowledge necessary to act as the premier's interpreter, as cables had forecast.

The linguistic difficulty has given quite a different character to M.
Laval's visit from Premier Macdonald's in other respects. It has largely shut the Frenchman off from interviewers, for one item.
Except for a few normal statements he did not wish to talk, and there scarcely was anyone available to cross-question him effectively, as was easy in the Briton's case.

M. Laval has not even a correct
Parisian accent, according to critics.
A provincial, he is described as retaining more than a trace of the patois of central southern France.
Moreover, the premier looks little like the conventional Frenchman.

He is short and chunky, very dark, with full red lips, a bristly moustache and hair almost like an Indian's. His head is round and his face is broad, short and chubby.
His expression in repose is stolid, as his pictures indicate, though they do him an injustice, too, for he has a particularly amiable smile which appears as soon as he speaks and changes him entirely.

One naturally looks instantly for his necktie, which is white as per specifications: Not a string tie, but a four-in-hand.

Jose must take after her mother.
She is nearly as tall as the premier, and not only stunner, which is to be expected from her youth, but has not his structural stock-iness. The prettiness attributed to her by the society reporters is of the Gallic type, or something other than the American type, anyway.
It would be safe to bet against her in an Atlantic City beauty contest.

been obtained."

This quotation is from page 29 of the above mentioned report.

So far the commissioners have ignored the suggestion of the taxpayers' committee that they publish a report of the county home similar to the one published by the trustees of the children's cates that they are also ignoring the law and the directions of the state officers as to the proper keeping of the records.

NEW YORK—There was a day when the ladies from Hollywood did the best they could to dazzle
the boys and girls who interviewed them on their transcontinental jaunts.

Most of them were exceedingly languorous or excessively vivacious, posed to a fine point, and ready to call upon their press agent or a policeman if anyone popped a question that hadn't been weighed in rehearsals.

Now there seems to be a fashion for naturalness and a certain independence on the part of the artists.

As a consequence, we have the experience of hearing Elissa Landi discuss the remoteness of her relationship to the royal Hapsburgs of Austria, instead of trying to claim direct descent and all the crown jewels.

We hear Sylvia Sydney (you know how widely heralded she has been as a new "great" of the screen) confessing that she knows her limitations;

Claudette Colbert expressing admiration for the legs of Lily Da-

HOPE IS STILL HELD FOR BURIED MINERS

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Rescue gangs today were working from different directions to reach six men trapped Saturday night in the West End Coal Company mine at Moanana.

No sound has been heard from the men since they were made prisoners back of hundreds of tons of rock following an explosion. Details of the company and the State Department of Mines expressed belief the men might still be found alive.

One reason for optimism was announcement that samples of air taken from the mine failed to contain any trace of gas or fire.

Joseph J. Walsh, of this city, chief deputy of the State Bureau of Mines, expressed the belief the men might still be alive but said their rescue depends on whether the rescue crews can get to them in the next 24 hours.

KIDNAPER'S GENIUS WINS HIS FREEDOM

St. Paul, Oct. 27.—(AP)—A judge's interest in science enabled a confessed kidnaper to seek perfection of an invention today instead of beginning a 25-year prison term.

As a result, A. A. Robbins, admitted participant in a plot carried out a month ago, was in the county jail toiling over charts or what he said was a chemical process which would "revolutionize" the manufacture of paper and paint.

ROSE-AVE. SCHOOL P. T. A. IS GROWING

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Rose Avenue school has 164 more members today than it did four days ago as the result of a 3 day membership campaign. The association roll now contains approximately 150 names to match the 150 pupils in the school, which brings the average within striking distance of 100 per cent.

The campaign was conducted along the lines of a contest. The pupils and teachers and old members made the canvass and the pupils brought in the paid up memberships which were credited to the several rooms. The standing was as follows:

- Miss Faye Jobe's room (5th and 6th grades) 21.
- Miss Clara Davis (3rd and 4th grades) 11.
- Miss Virginia Bolin (1st and 2nd grades) 10.
- Miss Margaret Gibson (2nd and 3rd grades) 9.
- Miss Helen Boyer (7th grade) 8.
- Miss Madge Dawson (7th grade) 5.

The enlarged association meets at the school building Tuesday evening for the final check-up of the campaign. In addition to the regular business Mrs. C. E. Craig, who was the only delegate from Fayette county at the state P. T. A. convention in Dayton, will tell what was accomplished there and A. D. St. Clair, superintendent of the city schools, will explain the school levy that is to be voted on next Tuesday.

GOVERNOR GETS INTO MINE ROW

Linbus: The Carbondale Coal Company, Carbondale; Steubenville Coal Mining Company, Steubenville; Wheeling Township Coal Company, Adena, and William H. Haskins, secretary of The Tuscarawas Coal Operators' Association, Coshocton. Simultaneous with the announcement of the list of coal companies and miners representatives to be invited to the conferences, James Lerry, state mine superintendent, issued a statement reviewing the coal industry into Ohio since 1921, showing the falling off of production and consequent loss of wages to miners, resulting, he declared from "unbridled competition" in the industry.

Berry's statement said that during the period from 1921 to 1927 when the industry was stabilized, Ohio produced 186,374,444 tons of coal while miners received $312,442,928 in wages.

During the four years, following 1927, Berry said production had fallen to 75,593,154 tons and wages paid to miners had fallen to $87,150,467.

Commenting upon this comparison Berry said: "This system of unbridled competition has evidently resulted in a steady decline in production and wage total, through failure of many producers to succeed in financing themselves against the savage on-slaught of competitors; a steady increase in accidents and fatality rates, because the tremendous financial burden causes many producers to curtail even the small cost of accident prevention."

WHITE FLAG RUN UP BY GANGSTERS

ly tailored clothes. He looked directly at Judge Wilkerson as he answered questions, frequently shaking his head to add emphasis to his replies.

It was one of the few times in the history of court proceedings in Chicago that a well-known gang character has taken the witness stand. But D'Andrea told the court he knew little about the affairs of Capone and his followers. He was just a friend.

The first thing the court wanted to know was whether Capone knew about D'Andrea's carrying a pistol. The respondent said "No," that Capone knew D'Andrea had been a municipal court bailiff, but that the two had never discussed the pistol. Judge Wilkerson had previously indicated he thought Capone too might be cited for contempt if he knew about the weapon.

D'Andrea said he was appointed a deputy bailiff in July, 1930. His resignation had been requested when a new chief bailiff came into office last February, the respondent said, but it was arranged that D'Andrea should continue to be a deputy, but draw no more pay.

"I certainly wouldn't have carried a revolver into court," he told Judge Wilkerson, "even though I were a bailiff, if I had thought it would be disagreeable to your honor."

JEFFERSON FIRE DEPARTMENT SAVES HOUSE

The Jefferson township fire department saved the Willard Creamer home on the Jamestown road, nine miles from this city, about two o'clock Tuesday afternoon, after fire had started under the house.

The flames were eating their way about the sills and under the floor when the firemen arrived, causing a great deal of smoke.

Cutting a series of holes in the floor and at the sides of the house, the firemen finally extinguished the stubborn fire and saved the house without serious damage.

Many neighbors also hurried in to render any assistance they could.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR JOHN TAYLOR

Funeral services for John Taylor, who died at his home in this city last Friday night, after having attained the advanced age of well over 100 years, were held at the Second Baptist Church in Columbus avenue, Monday afternoon at two o'clock, and were largely attended.

Rev. Charles Ison, of Columbus, conducted the services, with Rev. Orr, of Columbus, and Rev. O. B. Jones assisting.

Mrs. Effie Ross read the memoir, and Mrs. Margaret Easton sang a solo "Good Night." The choir sang "I Am Bound For The Promised Land," "The Day is Passed and Gone" and "On Jordan's Stormy Banks Stand." Several veterans of the Civil War were in attendance, the deceased having served under the Stars and Stripes in the struggle over slavery.

Interment was made in the Washington cemetery, with military services carried out at the grave.

The pall bearers were: Lawrence Taylor, John Burns, W. M. Cooley, Lee Anderson, Roscoe Vivens and Van Fleming.

$200,000 secured by $500,000 worth of first mortgages, a building and loan association may, with the consent of the state superintendent of building and loans, sell prior participating interests in approximately $300,000 worth, perhaps to an insurance company, thereby releasing $200,000 of their mortgage assets and paying the bank in full.

"This will, in many cases, avoid serious loss to the building and loan association by relieving the banks of the necessity of selling these mortgages at present prices or foreclosing in the present real estate market. This will not only protect the building and loan associations, but will help the banking situation."

MARKETS and FINANCIAL NEWS

DAY'S ACTIVITIES IN WALL STREET

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER

New York, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Wall street's attention returned to domestic affairs today, and further consideration of the status of corporate earnings and dividends sent share values into another slow decline.

Illinois Central dropped to a new low under 20, off about 5 points, and Santa Fe and Union Pacific registered similar losses. Miscellaneous issues off 2 to 4 points included New York Central, Chesapeake and Ohio, Allied Chemical, American Telephone, North American, Public Service of N. J., Sears Roebuck, American Tobacco "B," International Harvester, Eastman, and McKesson. U. S. Steel, General Motors, Stands of N. J. and California, Anaconda and Kennecott were among issues off a point or more.

News from Washington that the administration had completed its study of railroad securities, but would hold action in abeyance until the executives decide what they will do with the Interstate Commerce commission's proposals, was received with mixed sentiments. Banking circles particularly interested in railroad financing, however, were inclined to feel that an eventual agreement between the executives and the commission would be reached.

The weekly condition statement of weekly reporting Federal Reserve member banks provided further indications of the strengthening of the general financial structure. Loans on securities dropped $95,000,000, at last going below the $8,000,000,000. Some bankers have felt that this level should represent about the limit of deflation of loans against securities. Furthermore, the statement showed that banks had allowed their "cash in vault" to decrease by $13,000,000. Banks have been hoarding cash in exceptionally large amounts, for fear of unexpected withdrawals, and a reduction in their hoards was regarded as reflecting a conviction that depositor confidence was returning.

NEWS BRIEFS FROM WALL STREET

New York, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The number of women stockholders of the Pennsylvania Railroad as of Oct. 1, according to the road's records, was 105,496 and their average holdings amounted to a little more than 40 shares each. Each of the 241,391 men and women stockholders as of Oct. 1 owned an average of 54.53 shares.

Columbia Pictures Corp. plans shortly to adopt a plan for unit production. The new system will operate under four producers and is planned to distribute production responsibility heretofore largely resting upon one office.

NAVY DAY OBSERVED IN UNITED STATES

tion, Mr. Hoover described "The First Necessity" of the country as the maintenance of a Navy so strong and so efficient that no enemy could have attempted invasion.

At the same time, though, he said, "ours is a force of defense, not offense." He added that the armed forces must be reduced to the lowest point consonant with security.

Almost as he sent his birthday note to Secretary Adams, it became known that the United States would reply favorably this week to the League of Nations request for participation in a one year disarmament holiday. The proposed holiday, in which 52 nations have been invited to join, has Mr. Hoover's full support.

"Our problem the Chief Executive said, 'is to assure the adjustment of our forces to the minimum based upon the outlook in the world; to strive for lower armament through the whole world; to promote goodwill among nations; to conduct our military activities with rigid economy; to prevent extremists on one side from undermining the public will to support our necessary forces, and to prevent extremists on the other side from waste of public funds.'"

As the President compiled his conception of American Naval needs, he doubtless recalled that one year ago today he was proclaiming effective, with Great Britain and Japan, the London treaty for the limitation of sea strength.

GRAIN MARKET

NEWS SUMMARY BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN

Chicago, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Stirred by reports that France had about completed negotiations for the purchase of 20,000,000 bushels of United States government sponsored wheat, the market late today outdid the season's high price record. It was further reported that France would need to import 50,000,000 to 70,000,000 bushels of wheat before August next. The news caught the wheat pit almost bare of offerings, and the market jumped rapidly.

Wheat closed strong, 2 1/4@2 1/2 cents higher, corn 1 1/2c up, oats 1/4c advanced, and provisions unchanged to 7 cents down.

Bears in wheat were inclined to emphasize reports of satisfactory progress of southern hemisphere crops, Argentine advices in particular, noting that wheat was heading throughout the other half of the country and joining in the south. Something of an offset was an expected curtailment of yield as compared with last year, owing to reduction of acreage. Notice, however, was taken of the fact that Argentine competition was getting nearer, and that Argentine offerings were relatively much cheaper than United States wheat.

Rallies in wheat prices were promoted later by reports of excessively high temperatures in parts of Argentina and by assertions in some quarters that 1931 world production of bread grains was sharply below that of 1930. Corn and oats were influenced by rainy weather.

BIG TEN HONOR

AT STAKE SATURDAY

It's Up to Michigan and Iowa to Grab Revenge from Easterners

HOOSIERS ARE HAPPY

They Take New Hope After Saturday Victory

By WILLIAM WEEKES

Chicago, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The Western Conference will be looking to Michigan and Iowa Saturday to pull it up even with the rest of the country in intersectional football.

In ten intersectional contests, lost six decisions, have won three and tied one. Iowa which has suffered two of the five defeats, appears about ready to win a game this week, with George Washington University of Washington D. C., as its opponent, while Michigan, which seems to have recovered from its disappointing start, will be favored over Princeton's Tigers.

Iowa has been beaten by Pittsburgh and Texas A. and M., Ohio dropped a hair-raiser to Vanderbilt, Yale crushed Chicago, Stanford downed Minnesota and Pennsylvania upset California by trouncing Wisconsin last week. Wisconsin previously had played a 7-7 draw with Alabama Poly.

On the other side of the ledger, Minnesota defeated Oklahoma A. G. L., Northwestern walloped the University of California's Southern branch eleven and Nebraska and Purdue outpointed Carnegie Tech last Saturday.

Northwestern conquered Ohio State Saturday, but suffered the possible loss of two regulars, center Harold Weldin and halfback Ken Meenan. The latter probably will be able to play against Illinois Saturday, but Weldin is expected to be missing for two weeks.

Wisconsin and Minnesota, which meets in the most important contest on the Big Ten bill for this week, are bearing down in making ready. Defeat means elimination from the championship race, and the Badgers in particular, are eager for victory over their old rivals, to help wipe out memory of last week's disastrous defeat by Pennsylvania.

For the first time of the season, Purdue expects to have all hands ready for action, and that means nothing but bad news for Chicago. This week the Maroons, ill-equipped to start with, suffered the loss of three linemen, leaving Amos Alonzo Stagg with almost no replacements.

Indiana's forces are so elated by their one-sided victory over Chicago last week, that hope is entertained for a triumph over Ohio State. The Hoosiers suffered no losses in man power, and playing at home, are figuring on an upset. The Buckeyes, however, will be favored to give Indiana its first beating of the conference campaign.

Coach Hank Anderson is confident that Notre Dame will defeat Carnegie Tech when they meet at Pittsburgh Saturday, but has not forgotten that it is to surprise the Skibos handed out in 1928. Anderson was in charge of the Irish squad that day, while the late Knute Rockne watched the Army and Navy battle in Soldiers Field, Chicago and Carnegie may expect no mercy.

BODY OF CHARLES COMISKEY BROUGHT BACK TO CHICAGO FOR TRIBUTES OF SPORTDOM

Chicago, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The body of Charles A. Comiskey, baseball's "Old Roman," came back to Chicago today to lie in state until funeral services are held Thursday morning.

The body of the owner of the Chicago White Sox, who died at Eagle River, Wis., yesterday, arrived home this morning. Services will be held Thursday at 10 a. m. at St. Thomas the Apostle Roman Catholic Church, and burial will be in Calvary. The body was accompanied by the Old Roman's only son, J. Louis Comiskey, and Harry Grabner, secretary of the White Sox and Comiskey's closest confidant.

Comiskey's last illness came upon him while he still was trying to build a club to replace his American league champions of 1919, which he wrecked after the scandal which followed the world series that year. He retired in virtual seclusion several years ago when his health began to fail.

Since last March, three of the American league's leaders have passed on. Ernest Eargant Barnard, who became the league's president when fiery Ban Johnson abdicated, died on March 27, and 18 hours later, Johnson himself followed Barnard. Another of Chicago's militant baseball characters, Charles Webb Murphy, owner of the Cubs during the "Tinker to Evans to Chance" days, died last week.

It is expected that control of the White Sox, which belonged to Comiskey—franchise, players and park—will pass to his son, J. Louis Comiskey.

This Game of GOLF

I got this rules query from two different towns about the same time, very guarded and polite and sportsmanlike, but with just enough edge on the presentation to warrant the suspicion that the classic foes Messrs. A, B, C and D, were representing these two towns in the team match in which the controversy arose.

As the rule has a rather broad application, and misunderstandings concerning it arise frequently, I am going to state the problem, and give the interpretation of the rule involved.

A and B were playing a four-ball match with C and D, one of a flock of fourball matches which constituted a team combat between the golf clubs of rival towns. The match was all square through the 18th hole, and according to previous arrangement, instead of each side taking a half point, as is done in the Walker and Ryder-cup competitions, they went right on to the first tee, for the 19th hole, and more, if necessary.

The hole was a long one. A and B with their second shots were in the fairway and near the green, nearer than their opponents, I inferred, but bunkered. Anyway, they were bunkered.

WRONG BALL. The information here was a bit sketchy, but it appeared that C messed up his recovery badly and was on the green in 4, and that D followed suit. The side apparently was destined to lose the hole and the match. A and B were well on the green in 3, or at least one of

Bowling League Gets Off to Crashing Start with Two Matches

LOOP IN 2 SECTIONS

First Games Indicate Year of Keen Competition

After days of preparation at the alleys and more days of limbering up on them after they were made ready, the Y. M. C. A. Bowling League got under way Monday night with two matches, one in each section of the loop. Owing to the interest in this winter indoor sport and the number of teams entering the league had to be divided in order that a satisfactory and evenly balanced schedule could be arranged.

In the "A" section, the Y. M. C. A. team took the first and last game from the Downs Auto crew by fairly comfortable margins, but dropped the middle tilt. The individual scores showed no great superiority of any one bowler. The high total for three games was rolled by Creamer a member of the losing team.

The Williams Contractors made a clean sweep of the match with the Reader Printers by taking the first two games without much opposition and annexing the last one by 32 pins only after still competition had been beaten back.

The opening games drew a fair crowd of spectators and promoters of the league are confident on the morning after that the season will develop some real pin battles in each section before the slate is completed.

Although the masculine devotees of the sport are allotted the lion's share of the time on the alleys, the women are to have their night. Plans for the organization of a women's loop were made several weeks ago, but just what progress has been made has not been announced. For several years the women bowlers have had their own league and interest ran high in it from first to last.

Flyweight Champ Shorn of Crown

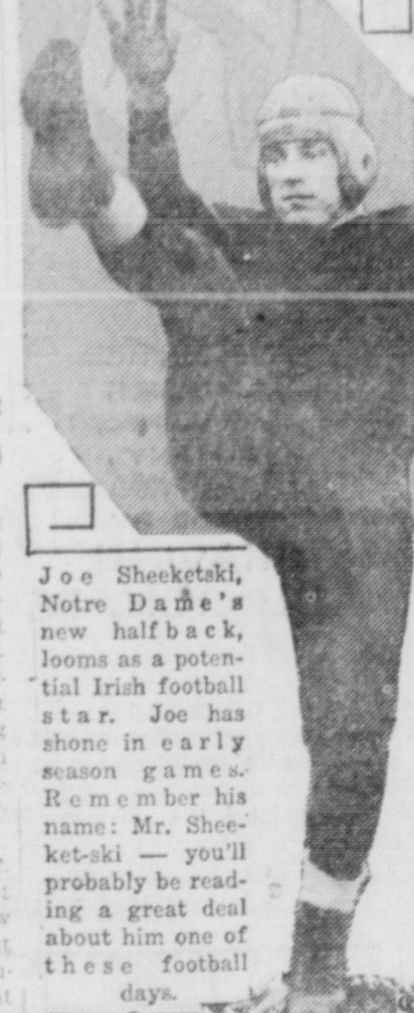

FRANKIE GENARO WHIPPED BY YOUNG PEREZ

Paris, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Frank Genaro, New York veteran who for years has been recognized by the American National Boxing Association as flyweight champion, has been shorn of his crown by a newcomer from Tunis, Young Perez.

Perez knocked out the American veteran in the second round of a 15-round title bout here last night, and barring complications now unforeseen, will be recognized by the N. B. A. as champion.

After a slow first round, Perez tore into the American in the second round and ended the match in 30 seconds of the second with a terrific right to the chin.

And Now, Sheeketski

Joe Sheeketski, Notre Dame's new halfback, looms as a potential Irish football star. Joe has shone in early season games. Remember his name: Mr. Sheeketski—you'll probably be reading a great deal about him one of these football days.

Fight Is Offered To Jack Dempsey

New York, Oct. 27.—(AP)—If he's really serious about that comeback attempt, Jack Dempsey can have 40 per cent of the gate receipts for a match in Miami, Fla., next February against either Victorio Campolo or Primo Carnera.

James J. Johnston, Madison Square Garden promoter, said he had been informed that the old Manassa Mauler was prepared to come east to discuss the proposition if necessary. Dempsey, preparing for a comeback with an extensive barnstorming tour of the far west, now is on a hunting trip in Nevada.

Observers considered it unlikely Dempsey would accept the terms Johnson has offered.

Whether Dempsey accepts the Garden definitely is committed to a boxing show at Miami next winter. Johnson has been working for some time with a view toward getting Max Schmeling to defend his heavyweight title against Mickey Walker.

No Alibi for Defeat, Is What Coaches Tell Boys at Practice

LIONS ARE HEAVIER

Visitors' Fullback Rated Among Top-notchers

"This is the week. There will be no alibi if we lose Thursday."

With these characteristic words, Coach Howard E. Maurer gave his proteges his opinion about the next game—the one which is to be played against Greenfield McClain here on Thursday afternoon at 3 p. m.

He immediately launched his practices for what he hopes to be the first win of the season for the Blue Lions. Most fans are expecting a keen battle and all the dope seems to indicate the same.

Up to the present time, Greenfield has confined most of its football to teams of weaker caliber. The only important opponent faced so far was Hillsboro. In this game the result was 20 to 6 in favor of the Cowboys. The Blue and White had lost to the winners a week before, 7 to 0.

The Hillsboro game, nevertheless is the only game in which the Yellowjackets have been scored upon. Clarksburg, Grove City, Manchester and Frankfort have all lost by large scores to Armstrong's gridders. A total of 265 points have been rolled up against only 20 for the opponents.

A desperate attack in the first half by Hillsboro in the Greenfield fray saved the day. The county-seaters made 11 first downs to Greenfield's one in the first half, but things were reversed in the second stanza as McClain made nine to Hillsboro's four.

Last Friday, Greenfield upset Frankfort by a score of 46 to 0. Straight football was relied upon most of the time. Bailey's 75-yard run was the headliner of the afternoon.

The Blue Lions will outweigh their guests Thursday as the average of the visitors will be around 135 pounds. Greenfield's football team is coached by "Red" Armstrong with assistance from Johnny Greisheimer and also Tommy Doyle, former W. H. S. athlete.

There will be one man in the greenfield lineup who was not there last year but was the season before. He is Thoroman Handley, fullback. This boy has been traveling along at a rapid clip all season and is said to be plenty good at punting. He is stationed at end on the defense and in the backfield on the offense.

Other veterans on the visiting lineup will be George Karnes, Wayne Wolfe, Durwood Overman, George Dailey, Arthur Harris, Arthur Harris, Carlton Sitterle, and Francis Haines.

Exploitation of Athletes Scored

Marion, O., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Disapproval of exploitation of high school athletes was expressed by Dr. B. O. Skinner, State Director of Education, at dedication of the new $325,000 Thomas A. Edison Junior high school, here last night.

High school athletes, now, he said, often become possessed of a "half of self-performance" that requires years to disperse. Athletics in which all or at least most of the students participate are most beneficial, he added.

The school dedicated last night is the final unit in a $750,000 school expansion program.

Two of the most painstaking, successful line coaches in the country will send their charges into action when Columbia's rejuvenated Lions and Cornell's Big Red boys block and tackle each other at Ithaca, October 31.

Lon Little and Gil Doble have been famous as line coaches for years. This season both have some of the east's finest backfield material to work with, as well, and the annual game between them takes on more than its usual interest and importance.

Columbia's Ralph Hewitt and Cornell's Bart Viviano waged their first duel in New York last fall with Hewitt carrying off the honors. They are two of the hardest ball carriers in the east to stop once they have been thrust into a broken field.

BALL CARRIERS 'ON' VIVIANO "After what Viviano did to us, I am thoroughly convinced he is the best back in the east," declared Al Whittmer, Princeton's coach, with out qualification, after Cornell's 33 to 9 rout of the Tigers.

"Viviano not only pounded my line to pieces, but he stopped our running attack almost single-handed. Just about the time it looked like one of my boys was going to gain a couple of yards, that big fellow would hit him and knock him back five."

"Yeah," chimed in Ed McMillan, husky assistant coach. "They warned us to keep a man on Viviano every minute, and we did. It was our ball carrier. My, how that fellow plays football!"

Princeton has agreed to take part in a "round robin" charity tournament with Cornell, Columbia and Penn in New York in December. It was suggested the Tigers might find themselves paired against Cornell again.

"If we do play them again, it will be under protest," declared McMillan.

CAPTAIN FROM FRIGHT

The inexperience of Coach Wittmer's material this year has caused some amusing incidents. There are only eight seniors on the squad, 11 juniors and 27 sophomores. Many of them never played a game of football until this season, and it has been necessary for the coaches to devote most of their time to teaching fundamentals.

Something occurred in the Cornell game that Wittmer delights to tell:

"In the second half I sent in one of my greenest sophomores, a lad who had never played football until this year. He was to take the place of Capt. Bill Yeckley at center. Of course, under the circumstances, there was an understanding that one of my veterans would automatically become the playing captain when Yeckley left the field.

"But this boy became confused when he got out there to report. The referee asked him if he was taking Yeckley's place as captain, and the kid was too frightened to speak. The official took it for granted, and for the rest of that period we had a sophomore captain.

"Why didn't you tell the referee you were not captain?" I asked him when he came out.

"I was afraid he would penalize us," was the response. "You told me to keep my mouth shut out there."

Love Stands By

By CLEO LUCAS "I, JERRY, TAKE THEE, JOAN" AUTHOR OF:
© 1931 CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION, INC.

READ THIS FIRST:

Lois Corbin, a pretty working girl, falls in love with Bruce Durand, who is from one of the wealthiest families in Chicago. Ashamed to let him know where she lives, Lois goes to share an apartment with Margaret and Arlene, two old friends. Bruce spends all of his time with Lois, and takes her to the nicest places in Chicago to dine and dance. One day he tells her that he has a surprise for her, and when she gets with him that evening he tells her that his mother and father are dead and that his Uncle Charles has raised him. Lois is surprised to hear this, but she is more surprised when Bruce slips his mother's diamond on her finger and tells her that he loves her. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 13

MARGARET and Arlene were in bed when Lois got upstairs but she had to show them her ring. She had to awaken them and have them share in the joy and happiness that she was experiencing. Margaret sat up and rubbed her eyes sleepily. She was a little peeved because Lois had turned on the light. That was one of the rules of the apartment that was never disobeyed without dire consequences. But when she saw Lois' ring and saw her face, too, she jumped out of bed and hugged her.

"I knew it would happen like that," Margaret said. "Didn't I tell you that it would? If you only played your cards right."

Lois protested, "But I didn't play any cards, Margaret, honestly I didn't. I was so surprised when he took the ring out of his pocket and put it on my finger."

Margaret laughed. "Well, you really didn't have to make a play for him, not as most girls do for a man. You had him crazy about you from the start. But you can't tell me that every girl doesn't do something to win a man over."

Arlene arose then and came over to look at the ring. She turned Lois' hand over in her own for several seconds. "Then she said, 'It isn't a very big ring.' Inwardly she was burning up with jealousy. She was more determined than ever now that she was going to break this thing up. What did it matter that he had given Lois a ring? Arlene never gave up, even if the man were married. That is, if she wanted him."

Lois said, "It doesn't make any difference to me about the size, although I think it is large. It's loving Bruce so much that counts, and knowing that he loves me."

"All men are alike," Arlene asserted. "I wouldn't take Bruce too seriously if I were you, Lois. It isn't wise to love anyone too well, you know. If he should happen to see someone else that he liked better than he does you, he'd leave you so quickly you wouldn't know what it was all about."

Lois stared at her. She couldn't imagine why Arlene was talking in this manner.

"Just like that," Arlene continued, snapping her fingers.

"Don't pay any attention to her," Margaret advised. "Lois was on the verge of tears. 'You know Arlene is cynical about all men. That's because she got turned down once herself.'"

Arlene went back to bed and pulled the covers up around her head sleepily.

Margaret went to bed then, too, yawning and saying that they all had to rise early in the morning. Lois wasn't thinking of the morning. She wanted to be alone, to be able to enjoy her first complete happiness. She went into the bathroom and sat down on the edge of the bath tub.

Her life together with Bruce Durand! How wonderful it would be! They would have a cute little apartment some place. Lois wondered whether she would have to continue working. No, of course not. How silly! Bruce wasn't the kind of fellow to expect that of a girl. But she would work if it were necessary.

She wished the wedding were now. Bruce hadn't said anything about the date. But then, she mustn't expect too much all at once. Wasn't it enough to know that he loved her, that he wanted her for his own?

"You're going to look swell."

Lois wasn't much good at the office the following day. She seemed suddenly to have lost all of her ambition. She didn't care whether she ever became a stenographer in Mr. Scanlon's private office or not. In fact, she answered her board listlessly and without interest. All she could think of was her future with Bruce Durand; the things they would do together, the many little things that she could do to make him happy.

Margaret helped her dress that night for the dance at the club. She insisted that nothing be spared in the effort to make Lois beautiful. Luckily, Arlene was out for the evening, so Lois used Arlene's bath salts and her facial creams.

"What she doesn't know will never bother her," Margaret said. "It had been Margaret's suggestion to make use of Arlene's things. Lois didn't like the idea very well and yet she did want to look her prettiest tonight."

Margaret put her hand into the dark, green jars, gouging out the sweet-smelling creams and applying them to Lois' face in the order named on the little book that Arlene kept on the dresser.

"You're going to look swell," Margaret said. "Bruce Durand doesn't know how lucky he is to get a good looking girl like you. Why, I never saw any of those debutantes in the paper that were good looking. Not even half as pretty as you are."

Lois patted her hand. Margaret was so sweet and good to her in spite of the fact that Lois didn't like some of the things she did.

"I'm broke," Lois said. "Can't even give you a dime."

Margaret laughed good, naturedly. "I guess that did sound as though I were looking for a tip, but I wasn't. I meant every word of it."

Finally Lois was all ready to put on her dress. She had been aching to get into it. It was a dress with lines! She was conscious that it showed her figure off to better advantage than any dress she ever had owned before. There was a certain way to put it on, the clerk had told her. She ran her hand carefully through the graceful, circular skirt. As her fingers reached the bodice they set the golden sequins and the crystal beads dancing and sparkling, casting their million dazzling reflections all about the room.

Margaret cried, "Lois you ought to be a movie star!"

Lois laughed. "Ah," she joshed, "Greta Garbo in disguise."

Margaret came over to her and pulled the skirt down a little in the back. "No, I mean it. I'll bet you could get by."

"Well, I might have considered it, Mr. Metro Goldwyn, before last night," Lois admitted. "But my plans have been changed now."

She brought her hand up in a kind of gesture of dismissal. Margaret howled with laughter.

"You would be good, Lois. You really would."

The phone rang. Margaret sprang to answer it. Lois said, "Oh, my beads, Margaret, my earrings! Don't let him come up until I'm all ready."

Margaret had already told the operator to send Bruce up.

Lois hurried into the dressing room and scrambled around in her little jewel box for proper beads and a bracelet that would go with her outfit. She heard Bruce knock at the door.

"Stay in there," Margaret advised, "until you get all ready. I'll talk to him."

Lois simply could not find a pair of beads that matched. She called for Margaret to come in the dressing room a minute.

"Have you any beads that would match this dress?" she whispered.

Margaret said, "No, but Arlene has."

Lois shook her head, but Margaret went into Arlene's jewel box and pulled out a short little strand of crystals that almost matched the beads on Lois' dress to perfection. Margaret put them around Lois' neck and fastened the clasp.

"I shouldn't wear them without asking her," Margaret said, guiltily.

"Nonsense," Margaret responded. "She'll be in bed when you get back. She'll never know the difference. She won't care anyway."

Lois walked out then into the living room. An actress had never made a more successful stage entrance. Bruce came over to her and took her into his arms.

"You're beautiful," he whispered. Margaret was almost as thrilled as Lois was. She felt that she was partly responsible for Lois' beauty.

"Sit down a minute, and let me look at you," Bruce urged.

Lois walked over and sat down on the davenport. She never had been so happy in all her life. It seemed, suddenly she heard a key turn in the lock and the next instant Arlene burst into the room, laughing hilariously.
